The foods specialists

Thanks to our expertise, we are there to support manufacturers of food supplements and dietetic foods / foods for special groups (FSG), with a special focus on borderline products that straddle the dividing line between foods, medical devices and medicinal products. We provide assistance in the strategic planning of new products and those already on the market.

Our services include:

- Product ideas and development
- Formulation design and product labelling
- Support in advertising and claims
- Marketability testing and advice on borderline issues
- Application and notification processes
- Support in dealing with challenges from competitors
- Ongoing expert advice and regulatory support

As experts for FSMP (food for special medicinal purposes) we can support you by researching literature, preparing expert nutritional reports and coordinating studies to back up dossiers.

Thanks to our interdisciplinary expertise and years of experience, we can guide our clients' borderline products through all market stages, both on a national and international level.
